- 23.4% locations have no crime
- 5.2% locations had 10 or more crimes in a two year period

April 15, 2019

To the Law and Public Safety Committee of the City of Cincinnati,

This is to inform you that the Carthage Civic League and the Carthage community are in agreement that we oppose renewal of Andy's Café liquor license. Since the current owners took over, there have been numerous issues and complaints made at our community council meetings. These issues include, but are not limited to, loud noise, inappropriate, loud and vulgar music and music audible past an appropriate hour of the night, blocking and impeding traffic on Vine St. as well as impeding vehicles trying to turn onto Vine St. from 72nd Street, improper parking of vehicles (such as blocking driveways and alleyways), public urination, intoxication including the destruction of residents' vehicles, trash and litter, the smell of marijuana wafting from within and general disrespect for the community. There was also an incident where a woman was shot somewhere else but ended up on the front steps of Andy's and later died.

Carthage is a tranquil, quiet community. It has had it's problems lately, not unlike most other neighborhoods. Andy's Café has a history as a neighborhood establishment (and has even produced a US Senator/Speaker of the US House of Representatives who swept floors and gathered pop bottles for the owners, his dad and uncle). But now, our neighbors do not visit the Café, our community is plagued with a business that allows its business to be paramount to the wishes and customs of the community, that allows its patrons to ruin and disrupt the lives of neighbors, to have neighbors move, and to alter the character of the neighborhood.

The Carthage Civic League and the Carthage community at-large are asking for you to deny the renewal of Andy's Café liquor license.

Thank you for your time and consideration of this request.

Wait, what? o.o. If you're an underage college student and want to drink, be sure to go the Clifton location. I won't name the name of the server, because, duh. I'm almost 20 and I asked for a Shirley Temple. Without hesitation, he asked me if I wanted an alcoholic Shirley Temple. 1) A Shirley Temple is a non-alcoholic beverage, so... unless I specifically requested alcohol in my non-alcoholic drink he shouldn't have made such an offer. 2) The Clifton restaurant is located in the heart of a college town, so he shouldn't have been offering anyone alcohol. 3) I'm short, small, Asian—and I'm 19. I often get confused for being in high school. I get carded for R-rated movies. He shouldn't have just offered me alcohol like I was some obvious 50 year old woman.

Go here and get your alcoholic Shirley Temples, yo. :D

News Fake IDs: How many students drink illegally?

Fake IDs have long been a staple of college campuses. With technology creeping into our everyday lives, purchasing fakes has become easier without increasing surveillance.

"I'm about six of them deep," a third-year engineering student said. "I always had someone else's fake or real ID. A kid from high school, two of some random guy from Tennessee, and then three real IDs of someone I know. The real ones worked best."

According to the National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence, 11 percent of the alcohol consumed in the United States is by people age 12 to 20. "I tried to mine ordered it, I've never been rejected," said a second-year student who runs a North Carolina fake ID. "It mostly works at the bars and stores that there's a reputation that people don't care about fakes. Most of the people I know have fakes. I was terrified at first, but now it's not that big of a deal. The cops should worry about other things that college students using fakes to get drunk."

Some students use the fake IDs to avoid being separated from their off-age friends on the weekends.

"I never had a fake ID," a third-year student said. "The first two years of school without a fake ID were definitely a little tough when it came to meeting up with friends. Now, I have no worries. However, going out with people who are using fakes, especially considering that I don't look very much like a 21-year-old, is sometimes difficult. There's always the chance that you get in to a bar and the friends you came with didn't because of their IDs."

"I'm about six of them deep. I always had someone else's fake or real ID. A kid from high school, two of some random guy from Tennessee and then three real IDs of someone I know. The real ones worked best."

According to a study in the journal Alcoholism: Clinical and Experimental Research, students used fake IDs about 25 percent of the time they drank alcohol before they turned 21. Outside of that, students obtained alcohol through friends and family members that are of the legal age limit. The more frequently the students utilized their fake IDs, the more often they drank.

"My fake works well, but I only use it where I know most people's work. Like Woody's and Ladder [19]," a freshman with a West Virginia fake ID said.

Uncle Woody's Pub and Ladder 19 did not immediately respond to comment.

She ordered beers on the Internet over the summer, but said most people she knew ordered in groups through people.

"Almost everyone I know has one or has ordered one. I think it's easy and I forget it's illegal; it doesn't feel like a big deal," she said.

"I got my fake the summer going into my sophomore year — very easy to get — ordered it online from a website on Reddit, 'rfakeid.' It took a month to get here from China," a third-year student in the college of arts and sciences said. "My fake worked at any bar and restaurant in the Clifton area, even Murphy's Pub. Now that it got created, not having it is going to be hard, because my friends all have one."

Murphy's Pub has not been able to be reached for comment.

The subreddit, rfakeid, serves as an ecosystem for fake ID suppliers and consumers. They offer a weekly-updated list of verified fake ID vendors based on quality, estimated time of arrival and price. The specific online forum boasts over 30,000 subscribers.

"Reselling fake IDs allows me to capitalize on otherwise 'useless' skills such as Internet anonymity," writes rfakeid user u/AKAdelta. "Each vendor has a site or email they sell through. Reddit is advertising only. Moderators verify legit vendors that advertise on the subreddit. People pay vendors with Bitcoin usually. You send the relevant information for your order through email channels and then you get your product a few weeks later."

A first-year student who uses her friend's Pennsylvania fake ID said that while she does use her fake regularly, she is still wary of the consequences.

"It works pretty well because I just use it at freshman bars," she said. "I just use it to get places with my friends. I'm fine using it, but of course there is always a chance that I get denied. It's kind of nerve-wracking, especially if there is a chance of it being taken and it's not economic."

"Buying alcohol at the Kroger or big liquor stores is always a bad idea," a third-year student said.

just fine. I purchased it online using Bitcoin," a third-year student with a North Carolina fake ID said. "It doesn't hold up to being scanned, though. A majority of my friends have or had fake IDs. I've got no real problem using it. It's a great tool for expanding your horizons through your initial years of college."

A study by Julia Martinez, Patricia Rutledge and Kenneth Sher published in the United States National Library of Medicine examines the demographics of fake ID use on college campuses. Through a sample of 3,720 undergraduate students, the authors were able to establish a few trends and dynamics.

Results from the study showed that fake ID ownership increased from 12.5 percent before college to 32.2 percent by the student's fourth semester. They also concluded that Greek life members were more likely to have fake IDs. Ownership of a fake ID resulted in concurrent heavy drinking including the following semester.

If you take the worst parts of college bars, underage drinking, and trying to find a parking space, you get woody's. They occasionally have enormous, delicious drinks though, and for that it earns that 2nd star.

- No kidding. Uncle Woody's can't keep the (often underage) patrons away.

To Whom it May Concern -

I'm writing this letter to you out of Concern
And disbelief regarding illegal activity in the Community.

I have 2 daughters and my youngest daughter who is 22 yrs old recently visited a Club called Brownstone located at 7733 Reading Rd in Roselawn. She ~~said~~ ^{and} ~~with~~ ^{with} another girlfriend thought it was a safe place to spend a Friday night because of the Police stationed outside, however once inside she said there were people freely and openly smoking marijuana, there were under age teenagers drinking and smoking as well.
They were told that the club was open until 4AM and that they would ^{not} be able to buy alcohol.

This can not be allowed to continue. It perpetuates negative behavior in our teens and young adults, i.e. fights, drunk or impaired driving, hitting,
etc.
